About

During 15 years service in the Royal Air Force Flt. Lt. John Nichol flew Tornados in both the Air Defence and Ground Attack roles. On active duty in the Gulf he was shot down on the first low-level, daylight raid of the Gulf War.

Captured and tortured, he was paraded on television provoking worldwide condemnation and leaving one of the enduring images of the conflict. He returned to active duty and was involved in policing the exclusion zone as part of the UN force maintaining the fragile peace in Bosnia. He has served around the world from the Nevada Desert to the Middle East and Norway to the Falkland Islands.

His entertaining account of what happened takes his audience from the highly organised training and teamwork of an RAF squadron to the isolation of being shot down and held in solitary confinement. His experiences qualify him to speak with unquestionable authority on not only surviving change but also turning it to your advantage. Indeed his physical survival is due to his immense reserves of personal strength, flexibility and the capacity to withstand upheaval and uncertainty.

Describing himself as 'an ordinary guy who just happened to find himself in extraordinary circumstances', John's message is one of optimism, inspiration and personal motivation. His personal triumph lies in having discovered his potential to cope with extremes and achieve goals way beyond his perceived horizons.

Testimonials

Thanks so much for your brilliant presentation - the feed back has been extremely positive. The delivery was inspiring and it is very rare that such a session is followed by so many questions. Pitched at the correct level, it has made my teams think about of their out look on life. Well done and hope to work with you again

Your story was as compelling and gripping as I had hoped. I welcomed your open and down to earth style, before and during the evening. I liked the time you spent on the evening making certain that the event would be as successful as possible. You obviously subscribe to one of my favourites motto's; fortune favours the prepared mind! The time you spent with us all before and after the event, and your very honest and approachable style was great. Many of my team commented on how much they enjoyed just chatting with you about your experience. The fact you weren't in a hurry to rush off, in fact quite the opposite, was truly appreciated.

John is a fantastic speaker. His ability to tell a story is not one shared by many speakers. He is engaging, inspirational and funny all in one. Our guests thoroughly enjoyed his speech and I could not recommend him highly enough.
