About

Graham Jolley is one of the UK's most talented and versatile stage magicians, entertaining audiences around the world with his unique style and amazing mind reading capabilities. Having performed at a huge number of corporate events, private dinners, conferences and on national television, Graham's act adapts perfectly to any environment.

A 'psychological' entertainer, Graham Jolley is able to perform any number of astonishing feats, baffling and thrilling his audience in equal measure. His work has seen him perform for a large number of international organisations, as well as appearing on the high profile ITV series 'Penn and Teller Fool Us' hosted by Jonathan Ross, among many others, and successfully baffling both the audience and the judges.

Graham's versatility has seen him perform in a wide array of settings, with both small and, in the case of his television work, national audiences. At corporate performances, the audience is frequently dazzled by the shows he produces and for him the art of illusion and psychological performance have been a life-long obsession.

With a career spanning more than thirty years, Graham Jolley's dedication to the art of performance is truly impressive. His unique style has been continually honed and he has worked with both famous faces and high profile business executives. His particular brand of wit completes his act and his audiences find themselves enthralled, amused and thoroughly bewildered.

Just got back to my room after chatting to Graham Jolley after our event. The man is an absolute legend. Never before have I seen an audience so captivated (and well behaved) at a Round Table event. His performance was mind blowing and his interaction with the whole room a skill to behold in itself. He

Graham Jolley was quite brilliant – a stunning performance. You could hear the gasps as he astounded the audience with first class magic. The clients are still ringing me days after the event saying "How the hell did he do that"? His undoubted talent, coupled with a tremendous sense of humour make his is also a true gentleman, his act was completely free of swearing and smut, which is so rare these days. We have already received many congratulatory comments on the quality of our speaker this year and I would happily recommend him to anyone that would listen. Please pass on our sincere thanks for Graham. He has made our event. Thanks also to you for a fantastic recommendation.
