About

Five are a hugely successful British boy band from the late 90's / early 00's consisting of Scott Robinson, Ritchie Neville and Sean Conlon.

Five enjoyed remarkable success worldwide, particularly in the United Kingdom, throughout Europe, Asia, Australasia, North and South America. They split up on 27 September 2001, after selling over 20 million records worldwide, having 11 top ten singles and four top ten albums in the UK, selling out Arena tours, and picking up just about every achievable award including Brits and MTV.

In 2013, the band reunited, this time as part of The Big Reunion documentary series on ITV2.
