About

Jay Rayner is a journalist, writer, broadcaster and food critic. He is perhaps best known for his Observer food column, and also presents a weekly report on The One Show alongside Chris Evans. ☒☒ Jay has been a restaurant critic for over a decade, written reviews of well over 700 establishments, and if there is one thing he's learnt it is that people like reviews of bad restaurants.

Having written for a wide range of publications including GQ, Cosmopolitan and the New Statesman, Jay is the winner of Young Journalist of the Year, and Critic of the Year at the British Press Awards. His first novel, The Marble Kiss, published in 1994, was shortlisted for the Author Club's First Novel Award and his second, Day of Atonement (1998), was shortlisted for the Jewish Quarterly Prize for Fiction. His first non-fiction book, Stardust Falling, was published in 2002 and was followed by his third novel, The Apologist, published in the US as Eating Crow, in 2004.

Beyond writing, Jay has found success presenting Papertalk, a radio show about the newspaper business, for which he won a Sony Radio Award. As a critic, Jay regularly pops up on Masterchef, is on the daytime cookery show Eating with the Enemy, and sits on the panel of judges for American show Top Chef Masters. He also hosts Radio 4's off-beat food panel show The Kitchen Cabinet.
